A Message From Seminar Leader, Jenny L. Thompson

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

JENNY L. THOMPSON is an experienced special education teacher and an engaging, knowledgeable national presenter and special education consultant. She is the author of AI-Powered Accommodations: Enhancing Success for Students with Special Needs, the digital resource handbook you will receive at her seminar. Jenny has a passion for sharing her expertise with special education colleagues in classrooms and through her interactive and informative professional trainings, designed specifically for teachers serving students receiving special education services. Jenny brings skill and excitement from her uses of the latest AI tools to support your practice as a special education teacher!

Dear Colleague:

Who among us doesn't want better accommodations for our students with disabilities, while saving time on prep and paperwork? As a long-time special education educator and AI enthusiast, I've been discovering a whole new level of unimaginable and innovative tools to support my work! I have explored and adopted numerous powerful AI tools that have saved valuable time creating specially designed instruction lesson plans, differentiating for all the special needs of my students, and almost instantly creating tailored accommodations and modifications that really work for my students. I am beyond excited to share all the practical AI tips and pathways I have learned and implemented, to provide you with timesaving tools, strategies and resources.

This NEW seminar will provide you with multiple ways to almost immediately reduce your time spent on administrative work and everyday tasks, place tools and strategies to help your students at your fingertips, and almost immediately improve your student outcomes. You will discover AI tools to increase student success through the use of powerful and evolving AI tools. We'll explore a variety of innovative AI means for significantly enhancing your students' learning, creating better accommodations that boost independence, and easing your workload!

Join me for a day of innovative and practical ideas just for you, special education teachers! My goal is that you will leave with actionable strategies and skills to incorporate AI to strengthen your students' learning, enhance your overall instruction, and boost your capacity to provide more efficient, high-quality special education services and accommodations.

Sincerely,

Jenny L Thompson
