- The best professional development resources to help you continue your learning after the seminar

“Excellent program!”

– JENNIFER LEMKE, SCHOOL LIBRARY MEDIA SPECIALIST

Practical Ideas and Strategies

We all know the role misleading claims, fake news, and false statements play in our society, so how do we incorporate learning about them in our classrooms without chaos, outbursts, or angry parent phone calls? How do we understand the art and science behind what our media organizations do to increase likes and clicks? How can we teach about bias without our own bias seeping through? In this timely seminar, award-winning school librarian KRISTEN MATTSON will help you better understand how and why media plays such a critical role in all of our lives. You’ll learn proven ways to more effectively teach critical media literacy skills in your classrooms and libraries, so you are better equipped to lead your students through savvy dissections and informed discussions. You’ll leave this seminar with an abundance of timely, proven ways to help your students assess diverse media sources enabling them to make decisions and formulate opinions based on factual, accurate and up to date information.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Kristen Mattson

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

As an experienced school librarian, KRISTEN MATTSON has had many opportunities to work with a wide range of students, teachers and librarians. A sought-after conference presenter on a variety of school library topics, Kristen encourages librarians to make libraries student-centered, collaborative environments where students are enabled to be strong readers and users of information. She is the author of Teaching MEDIA LITERACY SKILLS in a Fake News World, the extensive digital resource handbook each participant will receive at the seminar. Kristen's presentations are energizing, relevant, and equipped with a wealth of practical plans and resources ready for immediate implementation!

Dear Colleague:

I became an educator 21 years ago because I believed in the voice of our students. But in recent years, it has become alarmingly common for my students to use their voices armed with inaccurate information. While research and media literacy have always played an important role in my classroom and library, it has become increasingly important that our practices must evolve with the media which has become partisan, click baiting, and often driven by social media.

It's been my experience that many teachers and librarians feel unprepared to explore these topics because of the potential conflict that could arise, but I have found that with the right approaches, we can have productive, analytical, respectful conversations about what is in the news, how it is written, and why.

My goal in this seminar is to show you the "how and why" media is created and help you feel confident with implementing meaningful and impactful media literacy strategies. Our students expect that if something is important, we will address it in our classrooms and libraries. They trust us. After attending this seminar, I hope that you will have greater trust in yourself in providing excellent resources and using these strategies with your students.

I look forward to meeting you at the seminar.

Sincerely,

Kristen Mattson

P.S. Teaching research and media literacy is an act of citizenship and I am grateful to share proven ways to help you and your students on this journey!

"My goal in this seminar is to show you the 'how and why' media is created and help you feel confident with implementing meaningful and impactful media literacy strategies."

What Your Colleagues Say About Kristen Mattson

"Dr. Mattson covered a wide span of topics and supplied a variety of high quality resources that I can put to use immediately! Thank you for the time and thoughtfulness put into helping librarians stay relevant. It is not easy to keep up with all that is changing in our world, for teachers or students, and these resources and activities will help our students develop and practice the skills they need."

– Alyssa Eisner, School Library Media Specialist

"So many great resources and ready-to-use ideas! It will take me some time to digest all of it but it really has my mind thinking of new ways to work with students and faculty."

– Debbie Hubler, Library Media Specialist

"SOOOO many resources!"

– Jenna Moore, Media Specialist

"GREAT, GREAT seminar! I will be recommending this BER seminar to anyone who wants a great overview of Media Literacy!"

– AnnMarie Jenkins, School Librarian
