Deborah is known for her inspirational message, budget-friendly ideas, and innovative ways for making the most out of the resources you have. Join Deborah for a day filled with practical, easy-to-implement ideas that will highlight the latest, best books available in children's literature and exciting, creative ways to utilize them in your program.

Dear Colleague:

Here's my idea of a lovely day. Let's gather with like-minded colleagues. Bring your own snacks. For lunch, we'll take an hour – no lunch duty! During the day we talk and learn about books. Lots and lots of children's books. We'll read aloud. We'll explore dozens of free resources to engage our readers with required and independent reading. We'll hold new books in our hands, marveling at the talent of book creators.

Sound amazing? It is. This is my annual workshop where over the course of twenty plus years thousands of teachers and librarians have a day to themselves – just for books. Every year the content is different. New books. New resources. New strategies. It's a day when you can step away from your daily responsibilities and recharge your batteries. Learn new things. Collaborate with colleagues or make new friends.

Each year I read hundreds of titles, narrowing down a selection of more than two hundred titles for Kindergarten to Grade 6 with resources for each. In this NEW seminar we will discuss a sampling of genres, formats, reading and interest levels, and subject areas throughout our day. This year we will also spend more time on early literacy support, exploring ways we can support young readers. And we will discuss engaging ideas to get our older students reading, writing, and researching. We will bring back the joy of reading!

The accompanying digital resource handbook is far from being just a bibliography; it's full of supportive hot links for resources you can explore at your leisure. You'll find yourself using your handbook long after we part. And you can build your book shopping list while we work!

We can teach our students to be better readers without taking their joy. Join me online, in person, or on the recorded version to reenergize your own reading joy. Get inspired. Get affirmed. Grow your knowledge of the world of children's publishing.

If you work with elementary-aged students and readers and you use children's books in your work, this event is for you. I can't wait to see you. Bring snacks.

Sincerely,

Deborah B. Salyer

P.S. Come ready to enjoy a fast-paced day full of outstanding new books – plus powerful tools and innovative activities to use with them.

"This is my annual workshop where over the course of twenty plus years thousands of teachers and librarians have a day to themselves - just for books."
