Practical Ideas and Strategies

It is no secret that today's classroom can be a challenging environment for learning. Many students come to school exhibiting challenging behaviors that range from defiance to outright hostility. How can educators successfully deal with these behaviors? How can we work successfully with even the most challenging students and help them find more success in school and life? This outstanding seminar is designed to offer Grades 3-12 educators powerful tools and techniques to deal with your most challenging students. STEPHANIE WEST, an exceptional educator and national presenter, will share classroom-proven ideas, techniques and strategies she has successfully used with her own students over her extensive teaching career. Her down-to-earth manner and warmth will motivate you to take a new look at how to successfully teach today's most defiant and challenging students. You will also receive an extensive digital resource handbook filled with dozens of innovative, practical ideas to incorporate into your own school environment.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Stephanie West

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

With decades of experience teaching and supporting students in grades 3-12, STEPHANIE WEST helps teachers address disruptive behaviors and create more positive, productive classrooms across the country. She has worked with schools in rural, urban, and suburban settings, training educators and impacting countless others throughout her career. As the author of EFFECTIVELY DEALING WITH DISRUPTIVE STUDENTS: Practical, Proven Techniques (Grades 3-12), the comprehensive digital resource handbook you will receive at this seminar, Stephanie shares proven techniques and practical tools to help educators manage and prevent disruptive behaviors. Her NEW one-day seminar will equip you with the confidence and strategies needed to transform challenging behaviors into opportunities for growth, fostering greater responsibility and respect among students at every grade level.

Dear Colleague:

I think we can all agree that today, more than ever, educators face a variety of challenges in the classroom. These challenges range from increased accountability for educators to students who come to school angry, hostile, disinterested, unmotivated, and disconnected from society.

As educators, we share many of the same frustrations and have many of the same questions about how to successfully teach difficult, defiant students. These questions often include:

- How can I teach when students are disrespectful, disruptive or disinterested?
- How can I successfully deal with classroom challenges and disruptions?
- What do I do when students “push my buttons?”
- What do I do when I have more than one disruptive student at a time?
- How do I deal with disrespectful students without losing credibility or authority with my other students?
- How can I avoid power struggles?
- When do I ask for help or get the administration involved?
- How can I help students successfully re-enter my class after they have been removed for disciplinary reasons?

I appreciate your desire to experience a seminar designed to help difficult, defiant, disruptive students find more success in school and life. I have designed this seminar to help you not only deal with challenging behaviors when they occur, but also to develop the skills and attitude to make it less likely that challenges will occur in the future.

I have worked successfully for many years with students who are angry, hostile, disruptive, and very challenging. I have designed this seminar to share the ideas, strategies, techniques, and methods I have seen work with even the most challenging, disrespectful students. Please join me and discover practical, common-sense ways that we can successfully deal with and help disruptive students in our classrooms and schools.

Sincerely,

Stephanie West
