Practical Ideas and Strategies

More than ever we see students greatly impacted by trauma in our schools. What should we do differently for such students? How can we even know which students may have trauma in their life now or in the past? How can we help in the best possible way? We will explore the answers to these and many more important questions. In this one-day, highly practical seminar, behavior and trauma expert LINDA DAVIDSON will focus on effective Trauma-Informed tools, strategies, interventions and supports specifically designed for any educators who work with students affected by trauma. Discover common types of trauma that occur in children and adolescents and learn to recognize the symptoms and behaviors associated with children or adolescents who have experienced trauma. The focus of this seminar will be on practical and proven Trauma-Informed approaches, strategies, and interventions educators can powerfully use in their daily work with students. All the approaches Linda shares are geared toward improving instructional, academic and behavioral outcomes of PK-12 students impacted by trauma. We will also explore key cautions for staff in avoiding "compassion fatigue," as well as how to engage in self-care. You will leave this seminar with a renewed commitment and an expanded toolkit of valuable Trauma-Informed strategies designed to make a difference with students impacted by trauma.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Linda Davidson

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

LINDA DAVIDSON is a highly experienced educator, sought after consultant, and national presenter with extensive experience with Trauma-Informed strategies. She has worked in the field of education for over 36 years in a variety of roles including special and general education teacher at both the elementary and secondary levels. She brings a unique skill set in working with students who have trauma backgrounds. Linda is the author of, Practical TRAUMA-INFORMED Teaching Strategies to Increase Student Success, the extensive digital resource handbook each participant will receive at the seminar. Her fast-paced seminar is built on trauma research that is translated into practical, easy-to-use strategies to support students affected by trauma.

Join Linda for a vital day full of essential Trauma-Informed strategies to truly help you make a difference in the lives of students affected by trauma.

Dear Colleague:

Too many students today come to school with stories we don't always get to see. Situations outside of school create stress and may cause our students to arrive at school not learning-ready. These are the children of trauma. This block can occur as a result of trauma experienced in their lives. We frequently struggle trying to identify the best ways to address behaviors and symptoms that occur in the classroom as a result of trauma. Now, more than ever, we need strategies!

I've come to learn as educators we possess a great deal of knowledge about effective strategies, but we often do not know how best to match these to the specific needs of our students with backgrounds of adverse experiences and traumatic stress. In my extensive work as both a teacher and consultant, I have learned firsthand many effective strategies and approaches for supporting students in Grades PK-12 who are Trauma-Affected. It is my goal to share with you the best of what I and other respected experts in the field have found to be effective.

I want to add practical, classroom-proven Trauma-Informed strategies to your existing repertoire of effective approaches and resources. I want to equip you with ideas to tweak and adjust the approaches, interventions and strategies you already use to strategically address the unique needs of students from trauma backgrounds.

We will explore a framework for matching strategies to student needs. We will look at Trauma-Informed methods to strengthen the impact of instruction. In my experience, strengthening students' working memory, attention and executive functioning skills are critical elements for our students with a history of trauma.

Please join me for a learning-rich day on this incredibly important topic! I cannot wait to share my resources and knowledge with you!

Sincerely,

Linda J. Davidson

P.S. Students who have experienced trauma need YOU, and they need you to respond with a variety of effective Trauma-Informed approaches. I hope you will take this opportunity to gain these essential tools.

"I want to add practical, classroom-proven Trauma-Informed strategies to your existing repertoire of effective approaches and resources."
