A Message From Seminar Leader, Beth Hatlen

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

BETH HATLEN is an engaging presenter with more than 20 years of experience working with students of all ability levels. As a K-6 reading specialist and classroom teacher, Beth has also served the needs of students in a Title I elementary school. Beth trains teachers in practical classroom strategies for students with dyslexia. She is a certified trainer in Orton-Gillingham research-based methods. Beth has worked internationally to train and certify classroom teachers, speech pathologists, special educators and reading specialists. Beth is the author of DYSLEXIA: Best Strategies (Grades K-6), the extensive digital resource handbook each participant will receive at the seminar. Additional authorships include NOW Classrooms K-2: Lesson for Enhancing Teaching and Learning Through Technology. You will leave this seminar inspired by Beth's passion, encouraged by her ideas and filled with a wealth of new strategies to help all your students gain the skills they need to become successful readers.

Dear Colleague:

Teaching a child how to read is perhaps the greatest, most rewarding experience of being an educator. That "AHA" moment when the lightbulb goes on. You can actually watch the expression on a student's face change when they realize that they just read a word and understood what it meant. This is a life-changing moment! However, as educators, we know this happens at different times and/or stages in life for each and every child. For students with dyslexia, this "AHA" moment may not come as quickly or easily as it does for a child without dyslexia.

Working with students with dyslexia can be confusing and challenging. Through attending this seminar, you will better understand research surrounding dyslexia and the brain. You will be able to use this information to create a course of action that can profoundly impact the lives of all students with dyslexia. By understanding what dyslexia is, and what it isn't, you will be better equipped to advocate for struggling learners. You will learn powerful strategies, activities and techniques on how to impact the hardest to reach students. Ultimately – what is best practice for students with dyslexia, is best practice for ALL students.

Throughout my teaching and professional career, I have taught hundreds of children how to read. I have also mentored countless teachers regarding how to design appropriate reading interventions catered to the needs of students both with and without dyslexia. I can assure you; you will walk away with the knowledge to help all students achieve "greater literacy success."

Sincerely,

Beth Hatlen

P.S. I look forward to meeting you at our seminar and I am certain you will leave with practical and useful ways to engage ALL students and ensure they are granted the lifelong gift of literacy!

"You will learn powerful strategies, activities and techniques on how to impact the hardest to reach students."

What Your Colleagues Say About Beth Hatlen

"Very insightful! Loved all the resources that were provided!"

– Traci Urban, Reading Specialist

"Beth was very knowledgeable about the topic of dyslexia. I appreciated the gratitude and respect that she shows teachers as a profession."

– Mindy Balhoff, Reading Specialist

"I found the seminar to be very informative. Beth did a great job keeping it engaging and implementing real videos of her using these strategies."

– Krist Heimsoth, Kindergarten Teacher and Resource Director

"I really appreciated hearing from a veteran teacher who has been in the trenches and seen the needs of students. Beth was very personable and able to connect each part of her presentation to things that would be doable in the classroom or for resource teachers. Thank you, and I will be recommending her to come to our school district to speak."

– Patty Kosek, 4th Grade Teacher
