Practical Ideas and Strategies

For years, many schools and districts only served students when a “need” was shown based on a “discrepancy”; an outdated model that looks at the difference between a child’s ability and the child’s actual achievement. The “discrepancy” model is dependent upon a child falling “behind enough” to qualify for special education services. It is a “wait for failure” model that no longer needs to be used. Now schools and districts can use the Response to Intervention (RTI) model, focused on providing a child with the assistance when the student needs it. To help strengthen the training of your teachers, KELLY HARMON, a national presenter on RTI has developed an exciting, cost-effective train-the-trainer opportunity you won’t want to miss.

This two-day train-the-trainer institute focuses on practical ideas for implementing and strengthening RTI in your reading program with ready-to-use strategies for your classroom and school. Participants who complete this two-day institute will be able to better train Grades K-6 educators at their school site(s) on ways to implement and strengthen RTI in their reading program at Tier 1 and Tier 2.

A Practical, Two-Day Train-the-Trainer Institute to Support Teachers in Using RTI to Identify and Serve Students in Reading

Plan to attend as a school or district team, a representative team member or district leader to increase the effectiveness of your RTI program. You will learn how to build on the success of your current process, identify the key components that have the greatest impact on student achievement and find the specific areas you need to target for implementation and improvement. Leave equipped with a wealth of the most effective RTI strategies and training materials needed to train an unlimited number of teachers in developing or refining your reading Response to Intervention program for Grades K-6. Join Kelly to learn how to better support and accelerate your at-risk students’ achievement in Grades K-6.

Develop a Plan to Structure Your RTI Program for Greater Results and to Boost Teacher Expertise

If you are interested in providing higher quality training in the RTI reading process to your teachers, whole schools or your entire district, this is the perfect opportunity. Send one trainer or a team of trainers to this two-day program and they will walk away with an extensive digital resource handbook filled with the strategies and tools needed for their own training, along with classroom proven strategies they can use to demonstrate RTI in action. The focus of the two days will be on implementing the crucial components of an effective Response to Intervention program, how to maximize your time to provide quality interventions, defining the roles of the school support team, implementing research-based interventions, and how RTI works in a variety of K-6 schools. Most importantly, participants will discover dozens of tips and techniques for providing the best possible training to your teachers.

Two-Day RTI Train-the-Trainer Institute

You will leave this training ready to train other teachers and interventionists how to ...

- Optimize Tier 1 instruction and interventions for struggling readers by using a variety of assessments and grouping configurations
- Infuse lessons and activities with active participation strategies that boost the engagement of even passive and reluctant learners
- Intervene within whole and small group lessons to effectively scaffold students' reading growth
- Use visual, tactile and kinesthetic strategies and supports to increase struggling students' understanding of literacy skills and concepts
- Establish Tier 2 assessment/intervention cycles, monitor students' progress and adjust instruction as needed
- Structure Tier 2 small group lessons in ways that boost learning for struggling readers
- Maximize the quantity and quality of Tier 2 interventions without exhausting staff or students
- Increase the positive impact of team meetings on the reading growth and achievement of struggling learners
- Create a variety of targeted learning opportunities for struggling readers in order to accelerate their reading progress
- Implement the key components of an effective Response to Intervention model
- Use proactive approaches for supporting students with reading difficulties before they fall too far behind
- Use strategies and tools to identify students needing interventions
- Strengthen the assessment process by documenting student progress efficiently and accurately
- Scaffold and support struggling readers to accelerate their progress
- Reach at-risk students earlier and more quickly
- Expand the circle of support for students in Tier 1 and Tier 2
- Take the appropriate steps to intensify instruction

“ I really like the organization of the resource handbook. It has an amazing amount of ideas to help energize RTI for our building.”

A Message From Institute Leader, Kelly Harmon

Dear Colleague:

As educators, we have all worked with the student who struggled, didn't respond or who needed more than we could provide. In the past, we searched for a program to help these students; often, special education was their only hope to get intensive, focused assistance. We also know the students who didn't "make it" - who didn't qualify for special education and continued to flounder until next year's teacher could refer them for more testing. Response to Intervention (RTI) is an exciting strategy that districts and schools may opt to use as a better way to meet students' needs earlier and more quickly.

In this two-day train-the-trainer institute, I will focus on strategies for developing or strengthening RTI that you can take back and share in your own school(s). Throughout the two days you will also learn how to more effectively provide instructional models for teachers in your building. Some of the questions you and your teachers may be asking about RTI are:

- How is RTI different from what I've been doing?
- How do I effectively use RTI techniques to meet the needs of my at-risk students?
- What are the most effective strategies for working with an at-risk student?
- For each potential problem, what strategies can I use to quickly address the problem?

I will help you answer these questions and more. We will discuss the key elements in developing a model and how school teams can collaborate to make the process efficient and effective. I will give you strategies to organize your interventions to include intensive, systematic and multi-level instruction. Most importantly, you will gain strategies and training techniques you can use immediately in helping your teachers implement RTI in your school(s). We will focus on proactive interventions to support and scaffold students before they fail. This institute is not just about students with disabilities, but also about all students who are struggling.

Sincerely,

Kelly Harmon

P.S. You will learn dozens of specific instructional strategies you can use to greatly increase the success of your Grades K-6 students.

“ You will gain strategies and training techniques you can use immediately in helping your teachers implement RTI in your school(s). ”

What Your Colleagues Say About Kelly Harmon

"The presenter was very knowledgeable in the RTI process and provided useful information for any school or district interested in providing quality interventions for struggling learners."

– Michelle Todd, Teacher

"Kelly was very knowledgeable and approachable. I feel excited about sharing and utilizing these valuable resources with my students and administrator. Thank you."

– Linda Burnette, 2nd Grade Teacher

"This workshop was informative and engaging. I left with a better sense of Tier 1 and Tier 2 and appreciate all the resources that were shared. Kelly did an awesome job! Thank you!"

– Courtney Kovac, Teacher

"I love PD as a rule and I thoroughly enjoyed these last two days. I have always felt that I could improve the impact of my role as a reading intervention teacher. Kelly helped me better understand how all the parts fit together. I now have ideas on how to improve the planning, implementation, and needed communication that is required."
