Practical Ideas and Strategies

Students with special needs often face significant challenges related to executive function – skills essential for managing focus, behavior, organization, and memory. In this fast-paced and strategy-packed seminar, LISA ROGERS will show you how to better understand executive function difficulties and their impact on learning and behavior. More importantly, you'll leave equipped with a wide range of practical, classroom-tested strategies you can use immediately to help your students boost focus, improve behavior, strengthen organization, and enhance working memory. Don't miss this valuable opportunity to gain tools that promote greater independence, improved task management, and increased academic success for your students with special needs. You'll walk away with dozens of ready-to-use strategies you can implement tomorrow to make a meaningful difference.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Lisa Rogers

LISA ROGERS is an acclaimed presenter and veteran educator who specializes in helping educators. She has over 30 years of experience in working with students who exhibit difficult behaviors that prevent them from learning and socializing appropriately with others. Lisa's extensive experience provides a practical perspective for teaching students who have attention-seeking behaviors and self-regulation deficits including impulsivity, lack of focus and an inability to think and plan actions, which often lead to disruptive behaviors. Lisa is a frequent presenter at local and state conferences and has developed extensive inclusive education training strategies. She is the author of Strengthening the EXECUTIVE FUNCTION SKILLS of Your Students with Special Needs: Boost Focus, Improve Behavior, Strengthen Organization, and Enhance Emotional Regulation (Grades PK-8), the extensive digital resource handbook you will receive at the seminar. It is filled with research-based ideas and strategies you will be able to immediately apply or adapt in your own schools and use to train others. You won't want to miss this unique seminar where Lisa will share resources and provide solutions to addressing your students' most challenging behaviors!

Dear Colleague:

If you work with students who struggle to stay on task, manage their materials, follow multi-step directions, or regulate their behavior, you are not alone. More and more students are coming into our classrooms with executive function challenges that impact their ability to succeed – and it can be overwhelming to know how best to support them.

That's why I've packed this day with highly practical strategies you can use right away. Everything I share comes from real classrooms and is designed to help your students with special needs build essential skills like focus, self-regulation, memory, and organization. Whether you're working with one student or many who need extra support, you'll leave with dozens of effective tools to help them grow more independent and confident in their learning.

You'll also receive an extensive digital resource handbook filled with ready-to-use ideas, plus exclusive access to my online resources so you can continue your learning and support long after the seminar ends.

I know your time is valuable, and my goal is to make sure you walk away with strategies you can use tomorrow. I can't wait to share what works and spend the day learning alongside you!

Warmly,

Lisa Rogers

P.S. I'd love for you to join me for this energizing and practical day. Come ready to learn, laugh, and leave with a toolbox full of strategies to help your students succeed!

"Everything I share comes from real classrooms and is designed to help your students with special needs build essential skills like focus, self-regulation, memory, and organization."
