A Message From Seminar Leader, Anissa Moore

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

ANISSA MOORE is an experienced special education educator and national presenter with expertise in co-teaching and specially designed instruction. With nearly 30 years of experience as a general educator, special educator, educational consultant, and board-certified behavior analyst, Anissa has a wealth of knowledge to offer. She specializes in working with students with special academic and behavioral needs and supports educators of all grade levels to create and implement plans for specially designed instruction. Anissa is a sought-after consultant for school districts and educational agencies across the nation and presents at local, state, and national conferences, promoting evidence-based co-teaching strategies that support all students, including and especially those seeking to enhance specially designed instruction through co-teaching.

Dear Colleague:

I get it. I see you, and the students you're trying to help. Each day you put in hours of your own effort to help all your students grow and achieve, while faced with the challenge of meeting the unique needs of the students receiving specially designed instruction in a co-taught classroom. While we find every possible moment to collaborate with our co-teaching team, striving to help students to perform, it helps to consider new and innovative ways to get students to be more successful at school. Wouldn't that be a nice change?

Good news! During our day together, I will give you dozens of practical ideas and proven methods to better reach and teach the students in your co-taught classroom receiving specially designed instruction. We will take a closer look at your existing strategies and take your current classroom practice to the next level. To better serve your students with special and diverse needs, I have created this seminar to help you take the students in your co-taught classroom to new levels of success. You'll learn about the key components of SDI, discover engaging co-teaching practices, and explore a variety of tools and resources to enhance your instruction. We will explore a variety of ways to ensure that your students who require SDI receive what works best for them.

I invite you to join your colleagues for this day of learning best practice approaches and practical strategies to help your co-taught students find greater success with your specially designed instruction. I look forward to meeting you and inspiring you to expand the limitless potential that you and your students both have.

Sincerely,

Anissa Moore

P.S. You will leave with solutions to challenging issues in co-teaching and ready-to-use ideas for enhancing specially designed instruction in your classroom!

"You'll learn about the key components of SDI, discover engaging co-teaching practices, and explore a variety of tools and resources to enhance your instruction."
