We are currently teaching in an amazing era! When I look back years ago on my first classroom, the range of possible activities and tools was so much smaller. But given all we are tasked with as Science teachers, staying abreast of the best technology available and how to use it to help our Science students can be a challenge. The good news is that I have gone on the road ahead of you and am happy to share the best of what I have found works!

Google Classroom is designed to streamline our hard work as Science teachers to help us promote and develop lifelong skills in our students. The features of Google Classroom provide strong support for the new ISTE technology standards and support rich 3-Dimensional NGSS teaching and learning.

I have designed this seminar based on my years as a secondary Science teacher and Google Certified Trainer and Educator. I want to share powerful strategies and resources you can use to greatly enhance your Science instruction and program. I am passionate about, have worked alongside and coached many teachers in using technology to create vibrant learning opportunities for ALL students.

Join me for a day bursting with hands-on exploration of the very best ways to harness the power of Google Classroom and Google for Education in your secondary Science classroom – whether you are teaching at school or online.
