Practical Ideas and Strategies

It is no secret that today's classroom can be a challenging environment for learning, whether you are working at school or online. Many students come to school, exhibiting challenging behaviors that range from defiance to outright hostility. How can a teacher successfully deal with these behaviors? How can educators work successfully with even the most challenging students and help them find more success in school and life? This outstanding live online seminar is designed to offer K-12 teachers powerful tools and techniques to deal with the most challenging students – whether you are working at school or online.

We will share classroom-proven ideas, techniques and strategies we have successfully used with difficult, disruptive students. We want to equip you with practical ways to successfully teach today's most defiant and challenging students.

You will receive an extensive digital resource handbook filled with dozens of innovative, practical ideas to incorporate into your own school environment.

A Message From Your Seminar Leaders, Ernie Chapin and Mike Dreiblatt

Uniquely Qualified Instructors

ERNIE CHAPIN has many years of teaching experience, most of those years working with difficult, disruptive and defiant students. He currently works in a juvenile justice center teaching classes with diversion and truancy offenders. His success with these students stands as a testament not only of his skills as an educator, but also his compassion and concern for all students, especially those whom many in society have cast aside. Join Ernie for a thought-provoking, practical seminar. You'll leave with proven strategies that you can utilize with your challenging, disruptive and defiant students.

MIKE DREIBLATT has successfully trained over 500,000 teachers, students and parents in dealing with disruptive students, bullying and violence prevention, creating healthy relationships, and discipline of students with special needs. Mike brings years of experience working with disruptive students as a Principal, Dean of Students and Teacher. He has co-authored books on preventing bullying and social aggression. Mike's approach is about improved discipline, less disruption, more teaching time, and safer students. Join Mike for a common-sense, practical, humorous day filled with proven ways for effectively dealing with disruptive students.

Dear Colleague:

We think we can all agree that today, more than ever, educators face a variety of challenges in the classroom whether we are working in-person or online. These challenges range from increased accountability for educators to students who come to school angry, hostile, disinterested, unmotivated, and disconnected from society.

As educators, we share many of the same frustrations and have many of the same questions about how to successfully teach difficult, defiant students. These questions often include:

- How can I teach when students are disrespectful, disruptive or disinterested?
- How can I successfully deal with classroom challenges and disruptions?
- What do I do when students "push my buttons?"
- What do I do when I have more than one disruptive student at a time?
- How do I deal with disrespectful students without losing credibility or authority with my other students?
- How can I avoid power struggles?
- When do I ask for help or get the administration involved?
- How can I help students successfully re-enter my class after they have been removed for disciplinary reasons?

We appreciate your desire to experience a seminar designed to help difficult, defiant, disruptive students find more success in school and life. We have designed this seminar to help you not only deal with challenging behaviors when they occur, but also to develop the skills and attitude to make it less likely that challenges will occur in the future.

We have worked successfully for many years with students who are angry, hostile, disruptive, and very challenging. We have designed this seminar to share the ideas, strategies, techniques, and methods we have seen work with even the most challenging, disrespectful students.

Please join us and discover practical, common sense ways that you can successfully deal with and help challenging students – whether you are working in-person or online.

Sincerely,

Ernie Chapin

Mike Dreiblatt

P.S. The emphasis of this seminar will be on practical and proven techniques that are successful with the most difficult, defiant students.
