Dear Colleague:

Students classified as English Learners (ELs) account for nine percent of enrollment in grades K-12 in the U.S. But each year the number of Long-Term English Learners (students who have not been reclassified as English proficient after seven years) in middle and high schools grows at an alarming rate. This trend has quickly become a national challenge!

How can we best support our ELs and reverse the trend of Long-Term English Learners? How can we accelerate the success of ELs and help them to exit from our ELL programs more rapidly? In this seminar I want to provide you with practical information, strategies, tools and answers you can use immediately – whether you are teaching in-person or online. You will leave with ways to combat “unfinished learning” in your students and not allow your English Learners to fall through the cracks.

As an experienced EL teacher and Instructional Coach, I understand very well the challenges you face in helping your students attain English proficiency and develop high levels of academic achievement in English. I want to provide you with proven, successful and powerful practices designed to accelerate the language development and academic skills of your English Learners. These time-efficient tools and approaches are perfect for your ELs across all language proficiency levels.

Are you working hard and not seeing the results you want to? Join me to discover the answers to why schools are not meeting their desired outcomes with English Learners. Let me share what I have learned with you so that you can also experience the rewards of this kind of rapid progress. “Exiting” students from your ELL program because they have acquired the skills needed to demonstrate English language proficiency is the best kind of caseload reduction there is! You'll leave this seminar feeling invigorated and equipped with a toolbox full of ideas, resources and strategies you can use immediately ... an answer to feeling “burn out” and overwhelm. I look forward to meeting you at the seminar!

Partners in Learning,

Rasheeda Hardy

P.S. Armed with an extensive resource handbook and dozens of use-tomorrow strategies, you will leave this seminar with a renewed desire to make a significant difference in the lives of your English Learners.

“Exiting” students from your ELL program because they have acquired the skills needed to demonstrate English language proficiency is the best kind of caseload reduction there is!”
