The site hosts handouts, tutorials, and resources to support you in the journey of distance learning. Whether you are teaching in a fully online or a in a hybrid learning environment you'll leave with numerous tools and resources you'll be able to use immediately to enhance online world language instruction in grades 6-12.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Daryl Boeckers

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

Daryl Boeckers leads by example in his world language classroom. He understands how, when and why to implement cutting-edge digital tools in order to best enhance online world language instruction. Experienced in working with middle and high school students, Daryl also trains language teachers how they can best use digital technology in their instructional programs.

Daryl is the author of DISTANCE LEARNING: Strengthening WORLD LANGUAGE Instruction (Grades 6-12), the extensive digital resource handbook each participant will receive at the seminar. Recognized by his state's language association for exemplary instructional design and applications in the world language classroom, his interests include assessment, special education students in the world language classroom, differentiated instruction, and hybrid world language teaching and learning. Participants in Daryl's presentations have found them engaging and highly practical with a wide variety of applications for immediate use in the world language instruction.

Dear Colleague:

In twenty years of teaching world languages, I cannot think of a more unique time to be an educator. For most world language teachers the pivot to distance learning happened suddenly and many teachers did not yet have the training for it.

I have designed this seminar to showcase what I have found to be the most useful tools and strategies that work in world language distance learning classrooms to engage and support all learners using research-based practices. Students can leave our online classrooms with both 21st Century skills and proficiency in the target language.

For almost twenty years, I have been exploring the very best tech tools fit for the world language classroom. Used effectively, Google Tools, Apps and Extensions can significantly transform the teaching and learning of languages. In this unique seminar you will learn more about the tools your students may already be using in other classes or at home. We'll walk through the journey together to design engaging online lessons that purposefully point students toward proficiency in a digital summative assessment. I will share with the best, practical, easy to implement ideas I have found that can be seamlessly integrated into online language instruction. Additionally, you will receive rich examples of rubrics to guide your assessment, links to video screencasts to support students, student examples of work and online access to the most useful resources.

I look forward to meeting you at the online seminar. You will leave with a plethora of ideas on how you can improve your distance learning instruction no matter your current knowledge of technology.

Sincerely,

Daryl Boeckers

P.S. This seminar is designed for world language teachers to walk away with numerous ideas for using Google Tools and other useful educational tech tools to support for distance learning in world language instruction. I am confident that both novice and tech savvy world language teachers alike will leave knowing they have significantly added to their teaching repertoire.

"I have designed this seminar to showcase what I have found to be the most useful tools and strategies that work in world language distance learning classrooms to engage and support all learners using research-based practices."

What Your Colleagues Say About Daryl Boeckers

"Daryl does a beautiful job balancing the quantity of the material with several very concrete applications. I love the way he challenges us to think in a very practical way about how we plan to follow up on the seminar."

Landry Tagliere, French Teacher/Department Chair

"Daryl is a fantastic presenter with a wealth of knowledge and a wonderful sense of humor! He is enthusiastic, hardworking and patient – all qualities of a memorable teacher!"

Natalie St. Louis, French Teacher
