Dear Colleague:

My greatest frustration has been watching my students struggle with reading day after day, while my greatest joy has come from 20 years of turning that around with the diverse students that I teach. I think it's time to move beyond all the problems we face in the classroom and spend a day focusing on practical solutions. We can help all our students find success in reading with research-based strategies that differentiate lessons for the wide range of students in our guided reading small groups. Guided reading helps our struggling readers, as well as challenges the best.

In my seminar, I will share proven ideas that make the best use of your precious time and resources. Everything I share is practical and easy to implement because I model how to use the techniques, give you materials that are ready to use and show video examples from real K-2 classrooms. This seminar is designed to provide you with practical strategies and activities that are both classroom based and research driven. Who has time for any lessons that aren't best practice? I want you to have the opportunity to pick and choose the strategies and methods that will work best with YOUR students in YOUR school.

Please join me for an exciting day that will reaffirm the powerful teaching you already do in your guided reading small groups and will add the essential differentiated instruction strategies and lessons that will help ensure all your students become successful readers. At the end of the seminar you will have dozens of useful and adaptable differentiation techniques to help meet the needs of all the students in your guided reading small groups.

Sincerely,

Judy Lynch
