Practical Ideas and Strategies

All too often, students turn in writing that is not up to what we know they are capable of doing. Many students are not used to doing any real revision, let alone the deep revision that most writing needs. The reason for the omission of this critical step in the writing process is that students don't always understand exactly what is expected, and it seems like more hard work! Perhaps the most difficult part of this stage in the writing process is realizing that revision is not the same as editing or proofreading. Real revision often involves deleting whole paragraphs, sentences and restructuring for clarity – a foreign process for students who are reticent to change even one word once it's written on the page. Join popular national writing expert, Mary Ellen Ledbetter, for a seminar devoted just to this topic. She will share specific steps for teaching students revision skills, along with editing and proofreading strategies that students can learn to apply to their own writing, as well as to their peers' papers, whether they are learning in a classroom or online.

You will leave with strategies to teach your students to “re-see” their writing and turn in much stronger papers that are focused, provide supporting details and elaboration, have increased voice, include greater sentence fluency, and word choice that provides clearer meaning. Mary will give you rubrics, skill sheets, frameworks, and samples you will be able to use immediately with your grades 6-12 students!

A Message From Seminar Leader, Mary Ellen Ledbetter

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

MARY ELLEN LEDBETTER

is an outstanding English/language arts teacher and national presenter. She is well known for her fast-paced and motivating seminars filled with practical and ready-to-use strategies for grades 6-12. She is the author of many books including Writing Research Projects Activities Kits, Writing Portfolios Kit and Ready-to-Use Daily Language Skills, along with the extensive digital resource handbook you will receive, Strengthen Your Students' Revision and Editing Skills to Increase the Quality of Their Writing (Grades 6-12). Mary will provide you with many new, practical, classroom-proven strategies that will increase your students' writing skills and strengthen your English/Language Arts program. All of her ideas and techniques can easily be implemented in your in-person or virtual classes immediately.

Dear Colleague:

In my experience, the words revising, editing and proofreading have become synonymous terms for our students. For those who even attempt to tackle one of the steps assigned by their teacher, the exercise becomes nothing more than checking for spelling—and if we're lucky—for glaring run-on and fragment errors as well. The good news is that it's not because young writers refuse to go through the processes; rather it is because they don't understand what is involved in each stage.

This seminar will not only more clearly define the terminology but also provide teachers with strategies that give students the opportunity to practice each tier of the scaffolding process inherent in producing exemplary papers. Once young writers experiment with these techniques, using specially designed activities to engage them in the many methods of revision, they can then apply them to their own writing.

Revision, as we know being the most difficult, is an undertaking your students would rather skip entirely since it could involve a total restructuring of their papers. Dozens of writing samples provide the practice students need in order to synthesize and apply the methods to their own works in progress. The editing and proofreading sections include easy-to-implement lessons for every area of grammar/mechanics so that students have a quick, outlined reference at every stage. This section of the digital resource handbook comprises an entire grammar unit, complete with a comprehensive review. The handbook also includes essays with questions specifically designed to develop student skills in each area that are essential in transforming their formative rough drafts into the final stages ready for summative evaluation. You will leave armed with specific techniques, student-friendly, fun-to-use practice assignments and examples of the effects these processes can have on producing quality papers. I look forward to seeing you and sharing ideas at this strategy-packed writing seminar!

Sincerely,

Mary Ellen Ledbetter

P.S. I promise you will leave with practical strategies you can use immediately to help your students greatly increase their revision skills, leading to stronger, well-written papers!

'You will leave armed with specific techniques, student-friendly, fun-to-use practice assignments, and examples of the effects these processes can have on producing quality papers.'
