Dear Colleague:

"If nothing changes, nothing changes. If you keep doing what you're doing, you're going to keep getting what you're getting. You want change, make some."

– Courtney C. Stevens

Never before in our careers, have we been asked to be so flexible. The changes that have recently been forced upon us have brought us both challenges and inspiration. As a PK-12 special education educator and instructional specialist, I have embraced this opportunity to be a part of this education reinvention.

During this unique seminar, my goal is to provide you with numerous high-leverage strategies you can immediately incorporate into the changes you are currently making in your practice to increase the impact of SDI across all educational settings – whether you are teaching at school or online. I will share with you classroom-proven strategies that are most effective in supporting the learning of students with disabilities. The emphasis will be on highly practical and impactful approaches that are also extremely efficient, saving you valuable teacher time.

Join me to make some change! Together, we will actively engage in strategies designed to enhance and strengthen your practice as a special educator. Leave with dozens of tools to accelerate positive outcomes for students with special needs and increase students' active engagement and learning.

I look forward to meeting you online at the seminar and sharing amazing, easily implemented strategies and resources often overlooked. We will explore both new and reinvented approaches to implementing the most effective specially designed instruction.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Holloway

P.S. You will leave this live online seminar with a toolbox full of practical high-leverage practices and a new way of looking at developing stronger specially designed instruction.

"I will share with you classroom proven strategies that are most effective in the supporting the learning of students with disabilities."
