Dear Colleague:

As a fellow school nurse, I understand firsthand the unique challenges and rewards of our field. School nurses are the first responders before EMS arrives. Monday Morning Triage is very real. We are the healers of physical and emotional hurts. We must be ready for the unexpected and the unimaginable. We are responsible for the health and safety of all under our care, and that is a HUGE job! Over the years, the roles and responsibilities of school nurses have continued to expand, challenging each of us to work smarter and more efficiently, while remaining current in our nursing practice.

I have designed this seminar specifically to help you thrive as a school nurse. I want to provide you with a wealth of information, tips and strategies to increase your confidence and effectiveness in your school nursing practice.

The focus of our day together will be on sharing the most current, evidence-based interventions you can use to improve your response as a school nurse to emergent, chronic and mental health issues. You will learn the latest information for life threatening emergencies. You will also receive a variety of templates to help you streamline care coordination of students with chronic conditions. You will gain practical tips for managing your health office and school nurse practice. Discover the secrets I have observed in many successful school nurses. Learn how to stay energized and grow in your school nursing practice. These are just some of the many topics we will explore.

This seminar also provides a day of sharing and collaborating face to face with other school nurses who understand very well what you do every day. Knowing that professional isolation often comes with our role, engaging face to face is crucial for strengthening and sustaining our practice. Please join me for this engaging, valuable day, tailor-made especially for you and your school nursing practice in mind.

Sincerely,

Mary Anne Wesoloski, MSN, BN, RN, PEL-CSN (IL), NCSN
