Kathy Morris is a highly experienced special education resource teacher, service provider for students with moderate to severe disabilities, diagnostician, and special education consultant. She has helped educators and entire schools transform resource specialist instruction to increase student success. She was named "Outstanding Educator of the Year" in her state and served as Advisor to the President's Commission on Special Education. Kathy knows what works with Special Education students. She will give you specific and doable strategies to help your students develop the skills to make your resource specialist program a more positive experience. You will also receive the extensive resource handbook Kathy wrote specifically for this seminar, Strengthening Your Effectiveness as a Special Education Resource Teacher, that is filled with student-proven ideas and strategies you will be able to immediately apply or adapt to fit your student and classroom needs. Spending the day with Kathy is an inspirational opportunity, filled with practical, creative, and ready-to-use strategies and ideas for supporting your Special Education students and experience greater success resource room. You will leave with specific ideas and strategies you can implement immediately!

Dear Colleague:

I wish I knew then what I know now! As a special education resource teacher, there is a world wide web of knowledge and information out there about how the brain works, strategies that address metacognition as well as self-regulation, and an array of research about how persons with autism, learning disabilities, ADHD, and other children and adolescents with disabilities learn. How do you sift through the theory and find nuggets of instructional practices that work for the special needs students and their families who count on you to deliver? As I look back, some of these strategies I implemented unwittingly. But there is so much more information that we have learned in the last 10 years, and I have brought it down to a one-day seminar that focuses on the strategies, techniques, and ideas you can implement immediately in your classroom.

My goal for this seminar is to share this information with you in a lively, interactive day filled with modeling, demonstration, discussion, and visuals. I will provide very practical strategies that you can implement in your resource setting, specialized setting or general education classroom.

In this seminar, designed for inclusive and special education settings, you will learn how to recognize executive functioning deficits and how they can inhibit learning, along with a toolbox of practical strategies for helping these students get organized, stay focused for longer periods of time and be more successful in school. Strategies in self-awareness, work completion, task initiation, planning, and organizing, will all be shared as well as ideas for impulse control, motivation, self-regulation and more! Differentiated instruction will be emphasized to help you ensure each student's needs are individualized.

I hope you will join me to gain valuable tools to support your students' success in school, both academically and socially. Come and learn new strategies and interventions that will make a significant difference for all of your students.

Sincerely,

Kathy Morris

P.S. By attending this seminar, you will receive an extensive resource handbook I designed specifically for special education resource teachers. You will leave with a multitude of resources ready to use immediately.
