Practical Ideas and Strategies

In this outstanding NEW seminar, experienced speech-language pathologist and outstanding presenter Allison Cloutier, will share new, innovative, evidence-based strategies, and resources to accelerate your students' therapy progress. Allison will challenge you to think more creatively about the materials you currently use while also introducing you to new, highly engaging games and activities along with specific ways these can be paired with evidence-based therapy techniques to strengthen the effectiveness and impact of your therapy sessions. Allison will share a wealth of practical ways diverse speech and language needs can be targeted to match your current curriculum standards as well as specific tools and resources to increase carryover into the classroom setting. During this engaging and interactive seminar you'll have numerous opportunities to experience many strategies firsthand, and develop a plan about how you can best implement the new strategies into your own professional practice to increase your students' therapy progress.

A Message From Your Seminar Leader, Allison Cloutier

'I will share with you the best techniques to engage students in a positive learning environment and ways to effectively incorporate hands-on, experiential learning.'

Dear Colleague:

Years ago, I found myself in a "rut" as I used the same therapy materials over and over, in the same manner, and both my students and I were losing the "spark" that always made learning and teaching fun. Fortunately, under the guidance of an experienced mentor, I started to shift my perspective on how I approach therapy and engage my students. This made a significant impact on my everyday work. I now find that my students are happily willing to engage in their therapy work and, most importantly, they achieve greater therapy outcomes in less time.

I've designed this seminar to share with you the best techniques to engage students in a positive learning environment, as well as ways to more effectively incorporate hands-on, experiential learning into your everyday speech and language therapy sessions. I have also included easy-to-use methods to help maximize your time.

I invite you to join me for this informative and engaging seminar. I am looking forward to sharing a wide variety of detailed and effective techniques and materials that will encourage greater student engagement in your speech and language sessions, motivating them to learn more and accelerate their own therapy progress! Whether your therapy is in person or online you'll leave with numerous strategies you can use immediately.

I look forward to meeting you at the seminar.

Sincerely,

Allison P. Cloutier, MS, CCC-SLP

P.S. Be prepared to have some fun! This hands-on learning seminar is sure to inspire you through participating in engaging activities.
