Dear Colleague:

As educators, it is critically essential that we prepare our students for careers and opportunities that are presently unknown. This is a challenging goal which requires us to be equipped with the latest tools, knowledge and proven techniques that will help our students achieve their maximum potential.

Google provides an amazing variety of free tools that have hundreds of practical applications for use in our classrooms. The full suite of free Google tools allows us to more deeply engage our students through purposeful integrated technology, online collaboration and increased emphasis on information literacy skills. I invite you to come learn with me for a day. My goal is to provide you with the inspiration, knowledge and resources you need to successfully and practically transform your teaching and students' learning experience. I will provide you with a handbook that will go far beyond the subjects we are able to cover, as well as a website where you can find more information and frequent updates as Google adds new tools. Whether you are an experienced Google teacher or a new user of Google, you will walk away with new knowledge and lesson ideas that can be used the very next day.

I look forward to meeting you at the seminar.

Sincerely,

John R. Sowash

P.S. I have personally used all of these tools in my classroom and I believe you will be blown away with the possibilities!
