A Message From Seminar Leader, Dr. Desiree Alexander

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

DR. DESIREE ALEXANDER is an experienced secondary teacher and Google Certified Innovator and Trainer who has taught in the traditional classroom, blended learning and distance learning environments. Desiree has received numerous awards for her work in instructional technology including Top 30 Technologist by the Center for Digital Education, PBS Learning Media Digital Innovator for her home state and Leader of the Year for her region's Association of Computer Using Educators. Desiree is passionate about helping fellow secondary teachers discover practical ways to find success while distance learning by leveraging Google and other cutting-edge technology tools to greatly enhance learning in their secondary classrooms. Desiree has co-authored multiple books and is the author of DISTANCE LEARNING: Strengthening Your Online Instruction and Student Success, the extensive digital resource handbook each participant will receive at the seminar. Join Desiree for an outstanding day full of specific ways you can strengthen Distance Learning instruction and student success in your grades 6-12 online classroom.

Dear Colleague:

Distance learning is here to stay. Schools and districts will never again be unprepared to teach online and it will now and always be a viable option for our students. The time is now for us, as educators, to hone our skills. And yet the multitude of skills we are responsible for teaching students as secondary teachers is both amazing and often daunting. With increasing demands on our time and all that we're responsible for, it can be challenging trying to keep up with the latest, best practices for enhancing our secondary instruction. But, learning how to take those best practices and modify them for distance learning need not be daunting or challenging.

As an experienced secondary and distance learning teacher, I have specifically designed this seminar with you in mind! Whether you are dealing with a traditional classroom, blended learning or distance learning environment, I know you want to help your students engage and succeed whether they are physically in front of you or not. However, despite the array of technology tools that are so readily available, the challenge most secondary teachers face today is in keeping up with essential ways to best use these tools to enhance our programs. The good news is that there are tons of outstanding, FREE Google and technology tools available that will get your secondary students excited about logging in to your class every day and will keep them engaged and on task. In my online classes, students have successfully used Google and other technology tools to read/listen to standards-driven lessons, share their thoughts, collaborate on projects, complete assignments, watch and create instructional videos, and so much more! I can't wait to show you how!

I look forward to sharing the best of what works and what doesn't based on my extensive experience with distance learning. I will provide you with a comprehensive list of all the tools I have used with my secondary students as well as tips and tricks to save you valuable time and effort with distance learning. It is my sincere goal that you leave this seminar excited about returning to try out many of the new ideas that you learn with your secondary students!

I look forward to meeting you!

Sincerely,

Dr. Desiree Alexander

P.S. The emphasis will be on use-tomorrow tools. And you'll receive an extensive digital distance learning resource handbook, plus special password access to my resource-packed website to support your success with distance learning.

What Your Colleagues Say About Desiree Alexander
